

ROADHOUSE STORYTELLERS

March 30, 2017 7:00-9:00 PM

PITTSBORO ROADHOUSE

Beginning at 7:00 PM, five storytellers will entertain you at the renowned Pittsboro Roadhouse on US 64 in downtown Pittsboro. Plan to get there by 6:30 to order your dinner and first round of drinks before the stories begin. There is no cover charge (!), but there will be a tip bucket. Our storytellers tell edgy but family friendly, true stories from their own lives.

Pamela Alberda

Pamela's background is as varied as her stories! She has degrees in Theater and Education and has taught, sung, danced, acted, painted, gardened, mothered, and grandmothered! Pamela believes that awe and wonder can teach and transform us, so invites us to join her on this remarkable journey in the land of story!

Roger Manus

Roger's father and both grandfathers were avid story tellers, and Roger was an avid listener. When he became a father himself, he too began to tell more stories. Roger now tells stories as a hobby and uses storytelling in his teaching. All of his stories are true as remembered.

Sarah Beth Nelson

Sarah Beth is a doctoral student in the School of Information and Library Science at the University of North Carolina, as well as a professional and fringe storyteller. Before returning to graduate school, Sarah Beth worked in public and elementary school libraries. Her (very patient) husband is a lawyer, so their two small children are adept at both narrating their life dramas and arguing the case for more marshmallows.

Sam Pearsall

Sam, tonight's MC, is a retired ecologist and conservation scientist, living in Raleigh, NC. Sam's stories are true tales and tall tales based on personal experiences. Check his website at SamStories.org.

Judith Valery

Judith grew up telling stories in England. As an adult in the States she performed with an improv group called Off the Deep End! She realized she had lots more solo stories to share from her escapades in the British Isles, the Indian continent and the Unites States of America.
